

Seeing God's Hand      Ruth 2:1-23
Bethel Bible Church      September 20, 2020

The providence of God is a teaching from the Bible that simply means God is in control. He governs and manages all things for his purposes. He keeps his promises – all of them. He can be counted on even in times like ours to do what he said he would do.

Read Ruth 2:1-23.

One general observation from this second scene is that the hand of God seems to appear at more personal and individual levels. He is managing and directing all things to bring together what he promised. Regardless of your challenges, God is trustworthy.

Note 3 ways God keeps his promises in our lives.

1. God rewards those who seek him.                      Ruth

2. God works through those who distribute grace.      Boaz

3. God heals those who are broken.                      Naomi

What do you want to do, use, or remember from today's study?

And without faith it is impossible to please him, for whoever would draw near to God must believe that he exists and that he rewards those who seek him.    Heb. 11:6
