

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

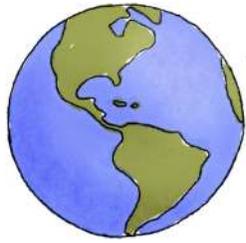

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

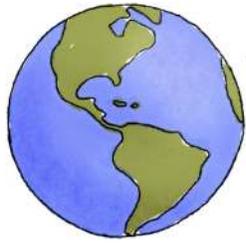

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

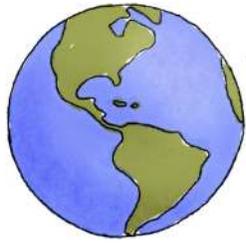

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to the ENDS
of the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60

to
the ENDS
of
the EARTH

Studies in the Book of Acts

Sermon-Based Study Guide
Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church

Acts 6.8-7.60 | October 16, 2016

Prepared by Rev. Curtis A. Bronzan
curtis@gspc.org | 562/493.2553 x115

I. Introduction to this Study

This week we continue our series To the Ends of the Earth, learning about the first Christian martyr, Stephen.

II. Connecting with One Another

When have you forgiven someone else?

When has someone else forgiven you?

III. Study the Text

a. Reread last week's passage, Acts 6.1-7.

How do you understand the "division of labor" seen in these verses following last week's study and sermon?

b. In verse 5 we read that those present at the first congregational meeting "chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit" to lead this new caregiving ministry. The following verses explore Stephen's role and his powerful testimony in the early Christian movement.

Read Acts 6.8-9.

Why do you think this opposition rose up against Stephen?

When have you faced opposition? Why did you face it?

c. Verse 8 describes Stephen as "a man full of God's grace and power." Campbell Morgan explains grace and power as "sweetness and strength... merged in one personality."

What fellow Christian have you known that embodied these characteristics?

How did God use that "sweetness and strength" for His Kingdom?

d. Reread Acts 6.10, then Luke 21.8-19.

How does Stephen fulfill Jesus' words in Luke 21?

As far as we know, Stephen wasn't present when Jesus said those words, though. What does this teach us about the ongoing importance of the original twelve disciples?

e. Read Acts 6.11-15.

Similarly, in Matthew 26.57-68, we read of Jesus' trial, which led to his crucifixion. How does Stephen receive similar treatment? Note similarities and differences here:

- f. Time permitting, read through the following passages, noting what you learn about persecution of followers of Jesus:

Matthew 5.10-12:

Matthew 24.4-14:

John 15.18-25:

2nd Corinthians 4.1-12:

- g. The accusations against Stephen are quite serious (and interestingly, were used against Jesus, too – see Matthew 26.61, 27.40, Mark 14.58, 15.29, and John 2.19). John Stott writes,

...nothing was more sacred to the Jews, and nothing more precious, than their temple and their law. The temple was the 'holy place', the sanctuary of God's presence, and the law was 'holy scripture', the revelation of God's mind and will. Therefore, since the temple was God's house and the law was God's word, to speak against either was to speak against God, or in other words, to blaspheme.

What is sacred in our culture? Think not just about religiously sacred, but culturally, too.

- h. Stott later concludes,

[w]hat Jesus taught, then, was that the temple and the law would be superseded, meaning not that they had never been divine gifts in the first place, but that they would find their God-intended fulfillment in him, the

Messiah. Jesus was and is himself the replacement of the temple and the fulfillment of the law. Moreover, to affirm that both temple and law pointed forward to him and are now fulfilled in him is to magnify their importance, not to denigrate it.

Do you agree with Stott's reasoning? Why or why not?

- i. Verse 15 seems to recall Moses' radiant face after returning from Mount Sinai with the law in Exodus 34.29-35.

Why do you think Luke takes time to point this out to his readers?

- j. Again, if you have time to do so, read through Stephen's defense in Acts 7.1-53.

How does Stephen answer the high priest's question: "Are these charges true?"

- k. Even if don't have time to read his entire response, be sure to notice Stephen's final statement in 7.51-53. Then, continue on through verses 54-60.

Recall that in Acts 1.8, Jesus stated his earliest followers would also be his martuses, translated as either "martyrs" or "witnesses." Stephen is, then, the first martus, "who sealed his testimony with his blood."

What gave him the strength to forgive his accusers and killers?

Who do you need to forgive?

- l. Time permitting, read and reflect on Ephesians 4.32, Matthew 6.14-15, 18.21-22, and Colossians 3.13.

IV. Pray

- a. Pray that God would guide you to forgive those who have wronged you or your family,
- b. Ask God to help us to embody the "sweetness and strength" of Stephen and to share our faith despite the response we may receive,
- c. Lift up Christians around the world who are experiencing persecution for their faith – that God would give them wisdom and boldness.

Weekly Reading Schedule

Monday, October 17th	Acts 6.8-15
Tuesday, October 18th	Acts 7.1-16
Wednesday, October 19th	Acts 7.17-38
Thursday, October 20th	Acts 7.39-53
Friday, October 21st	Acts 7.54-60