Colossian 1:9-15

“Christology is the theological heart of Colossians, and, like the spokes of a wheel, all the other themes of the letter radiate from it.”

~ Douglas Moo

The Letter To The Colossians And Philemon

“There is no book in the New Testament, including John’s Gospel, which presents such a comprehensive picture of the fullness of Christ. Accordingly, there is no writing better-equipped to draw us upward than the book of Colossians.”

~ R. Kent Hughes

Thanksgiving And Prayer

- Thanksgiving for Everything! (vs. 1-8)

“The hope laid up (or stored) in Heaven is the inheritance of every Christian. No matter how ugly this world becomes, the promise of eternity remains inviolable. Nothing can take that from us. This blessed hope is not wishful thinking but a blessed certainty, guaranteed by Christ Himself.

The Colossians had heard the Word preached and, in company with individuals all across the then-known world, they had believed it and made it their own.”

Thanksgiving and Prayer

- Thanksgiving for Everything! (vs. 1-8)
- Prayer for Everything! (vs. 9-14)

“The Christians in Colossae were not super-saints. They were ordinary people living ordinary lives. They arose each morning and went about the same routines that you and I follow. They suffered with the same moods and emotions, and were bothered by the same hang-ups. Yet Paul knew they could be blessed with deep insight into the things of God. What is more, he knew that unless they were blessed with that quality they would be hindered in their spiritual growth. He determined, therefore, to pray regularly that God in His grace would grant them that discernment.”
